Almost the exact same work by two different artists in two different places.

Skype connection?

Of course, we could simply create in our respective cities and then say the other created the work. Show run should be simultaneous. Should account for time difference... are you 8 hours ahead? I forget... Whatever the time difference, we should have the exhibition hours reflect the difference.

Or we could spend money shipping the exact same work to each other abroad... I make no money, so I like the idea of simply creating and attributing creation to each other.
